Group Report (Comments, Concerns, Special Needs, Etc.):

Home group members showing strong participation -

I was tasked with researching information relative to our status as a 501 non-profit to help us decide if we could or should move forward in that direction.

I had multiple meetings with an attorney to discuss and define what might best fit our specific needs. I also contacted world services where I gained insight into what works in other areas and regions of NA.

According to the laws of the State of Louisiana, any commercial/business account requires specific information. It would require a person's SSN and business credentials, OR filing a DBA (doing business as) OR filing as a LLC (limited liability corp) OR providing an EIN (employer identification number). (REQUIRES AN INDIVIDUAL)

The DBA and the LLC would require an application to the Louisiana Secretary of State. The EIN is a federally assigned number. One or more of these are required to open and maintain an account status of 501 non-profit.

It is my understanding that with limits on donations capped at 3K annually per member or a one-time contribution of 10K maximum at death, the 501-C-3 format would best serve our needs.

The attorney I contacted also suggested we look to a CPA for additional information and guidance.

In loving service,
Stephan J.

Most NA groups and service committees have a default legal status, usually assigned by the government where they reside. In the USA, the most typical status of an NA group or service committee is an "unincorporated association of individuals." The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) created and assigns this designation.

The Fellowship of NA is a decentralized organization with no central authority. As Tradition Nine reminds us, accountability flows toward the groups. While NAWS maintains a 501c3 non-profit corporation, we cannot include other service bodies in that structure. Because of the complexities of creating and managing a 501c3 corporation, the vast majority of NA groups and most service committees do not attempt to form a non-profit corporation. Forming a 501c3 requires drafting bylaws and articles of incorporation and creating a board of directors who become legally responsible for maintaining the corporation. Periodic reporting to the IRS is typically needed, and the corporation must register with the state agency that oversees non-profits.

Some NA service committees take on service delivery efforts like a convention or a service office. These commitments often place the committee in the position where they believe the best approach is to create a more complex legal entity, typically a 501(c)3 non-profit corporation. A corporation provides a measure of protection from personal liability and can help deal with tax reporting responsibilities. Creating a corporation can have far-reaching effects, both positive and negative. Forming a corporation typically requires a core group of several members willing to do the work necessary to set up the entity and to communicate the corporation's details to other NA members, sometimes over and over again. This is very important because as trusted servants rotate in and out of service, the understanding of the corporation's roles and responsibilities can be lost.

While it is possible to incorporate an area or regional committee, in most cases, a corporation is formed that is accountable to the ASC or RSC through a board of directors. This board is a subcommittee of the ASC or RSC. Once a corporation is created, it must be maintained following any applicable corporate regulations. These duties cannot simply be abandoned because members are unaware of the responsibilities or nobody wants to do the work or pay for the necessary services. Depending on the details of the law, a corporation can apply for and receive tax exemption from both state and federal income tax. However, reports must be prepared and filed with state and federal agencies if tax exemption is granted. Generally, non-profit corporations are not exempt from paying state sales tax on items they consume. Although we are a non-profit fellowship, without the appropriate legal status, that does not provide us the ability to forego paying sales tax for goods and services.

The creation of a non-profit corporation is intended to facilitate our interactions with the world around us, our external relationships, to support service efforts that require interacting with the world outside of NA. On the other hand, our internal relationships and communications have always been guided by the principles of our Twelve Traditions and Twelve Concepts, as articulated in our NA literature and service manuals, regardless of any corporate status with the IRS. From the Basic Text, Tradition Nine: "The Ninth Tradition goes on to define the nature of the things that we can do to help NA. It says that we may create service boards or committees to serve the needs of the Fellowship. They exist solely to serve the Fellowship. This is the nature of our service structure as it has evolved and been defined in the NA service manual."

All NA service committees are spiritually accountable to those they serve, regardless of legal status. Our Twelve Traditions and Twelve Concepts do not provide special exemptions for legal entities. And in fact, it is often most important to keep a firm grasp on the cautions offered in our Traditions if we form a corporation. From It Works: "The principle of humility also applies to the boards and committees spoken of in our Ninth Tradition. These boards and committees are established to serve only, not to govern. They are directly responsible to the groups and are always subject to the explicit direction of the groups."

One of the most common challenges associated with creating a corporation is that legally, they are an autonomous entity, independent and separate from all other entities. Further, the trusted servants responsible for overseeing the corporation can begin to get the sense that they are "experts" on what is best for the corporation. Over time, the understanding that all service committees in NA are accountable to those they serve can get lost. Some members forget that the corporation is intended to assist our external relationships, not our internal relationships, as discussed in the last segment. Common agreement and committed maintenance of the internal subordinate relationship discussed in our Ninth Tradition are essential to maintain lines of accountability and communication. The Second Tradition essay from the Basic Text reminds us: "Those of us who have been involved in service or in getting a group started sometimes have a hard time letting go... We must remember that offices have been placed in trust, that we are trusted servants, and that at no time do any of us govern."

If a service committee intends to create a non-profit corporation, one of the most important actions is to identify a connection between the corporation and the committee that created it in the Corporate By-laws and Articles of Incorporation. This simple precaution can serve the committee, especially over time, as trusted servants rotate through the committees.

Another approach that has worked for other committees is maintaining strong communication between the RSC or ASC and the trusted servants overseeing the corporation (Board of Directors). These trusted servants are officers of the corporation and will attend the ASC or RSC and offer a report. It can also be a good idea for the ASC or RSC leadership to regularly attend the Board of Directors meetings. This can go a long way toward strengthening the collaborative energy that supports a healthy relationship between the service bodies. From It Works: "Communication is a two-way street...By maintaining regular two-way communication between NA groups and the boards and committees serving them, we create an atmosphere of responsibility that serves our Fellowship and its primary purpose well."
